truly specialised...

Brus Chambers is an independent specialised law firm structured around project practice areas namely infrastructure and construction; oil, gas and natural resources; shipping and port development; energy and mining; entertainment and finance; project finance; and other projects be it minor, mid-sized or mega size projects including bridges, tunnels, highways, railways, airports, seaports, power plants, dams, waste water projects, oil and natural gas extraction projects, public buildings, information technology systems, aerospace projects or project of any size of any nature.

Brus Chamber is a specialised law firm where the lead partner heading the practice is a specialist in that area. The team members that are assembled for the given file too have specialised knowledge.

We too strongly believe that genuine industry legal specialists are rare, but they can save time and money for clients.

Within projects, we specialise in

- i. Infrastructure and Construction
- ii. Oil, Gas and Natural Resources
- iii. Energy and Mining
- iv. Project Finance
- v. Entertainment and Finance
- vi. Real Estate
- vii. Other Projects

We represents the sponsors, developers, or promoters of projects as well as commercial and development banks, investors, vendors, landowners, contractors (engineering, procurement, and construction (EPC) and operation and maintenance (O&M)), operators, and equipment suppliers and all interested parties. Our lawyers advise on all phases of the project – from the initial concept, government and regulatory issues, structuring, risk management, and development through to bidding, financing, engineering and construction, and beyond including drafting of documents and contracts.

In handling complex project development and finance transactions, we draw upon the knowledge and skills of our lawyers in related practice areas and technical experts where required.

Projects form an integral part of the economy and development of most countries and India is no exception. The number of projects has increased substantially in India over the last decade and India in particular has witnessed a phenomenal boom. As a consequence of this, focus on projects in India is more intense than ever. Against this background, with our dedicated projects team, we cater to the needs of our clients from corporate set up to procurement, contract negotiation, dispute resolution, arbitration and litigation advocacy and settlement negotiations.

Brus Chambers has been advising several overseas clients on mining and power projects in India including private power projects

OIL, GAS & NATURAL RESOURCES

‘..Shrikant Hathi heads the ‘stand-out team’.

Shrikant Hathi is consistently ranked as ‘Leading Individual’ by Legal500 since 2004 for shipping work in India

Our approach to resolving issues faced by clients is practical, direct, speedy and effective. Our team is entirely dedicated to resolving construction industry issues and it combines the experience of our well established Commercial Property and Litigation practice and the drive and innovation that has helped make us a leading player in the Indian legal profession.

Whether you are a large construction company looking for advice on the wide range of issues affecting either your business or your contracts, or a small contractor waiting for that elusive payment, our Infrastructure and Construction team can help.

The Government fully opened up the construction development sector for foreign investors. FDI up to 100 per cent is allowed under automatic route in townships, housing, built-up infrastructure and construction-development projects. Construction development projects would also include housing, commercial premises, hotels, resorts, hospitals, educational institutions, recreational facilities, city and regional level infrastructure. The government approved 100 per cent FDI in construction in order to catalyse investment in a vital infrastructural sector.

Our project practice includes projects related litigation and arbitration.

SHIPPING & PORT DEVELOPMENT

- All shipping related documents.

Brus Chambers shipping team eats sleeps and breathes shipping law, advising international and domestic clients on entire gamut of admiralty, shipping and maritime.

Shrikant Hathi is listed in the elite “Leading Lawyers” list as “Leading Individual”, by Legal 500 since 2004, he is also is considered as “best of the best” for shipping work by Shippinglawyers.NET, heads the shipping team.

Brus Chambers is a dominant firm in the Indian admiralty and shipping market and has a global reputation in this sector. Independent credential bodies such as Legal500; Informa Group (Lloyds); Euromoney Expert Guides has recommended Brus Chambers for shipping matters.

Brus Chambers is also known globally for its projects related work including but not limited to infrastructure, construction, oil, gas, mining, energy, real estate, property, shipping, dams, highways, pipelines, waterways, bridges.

Our practice includes port privatisations, development, restructurings, maritime and ports, mergers and acquisitions including the sale and purchase of shipping and ferry lines, docks and yards, ship and rig builders, and logistics companies.

Brus Chambers covers entire gamut of shipping including port, advising on major port and shipping deals in India and is also advising on international shipping and port projects. Our project port infrastructure and shipping lawyers facilitate the development, construction, and financing of numerous port and infrastructure projects, among others. We have successfully represented all of the leading to small players in this sector in high-profile to small-projects projects in a broad range of industries and geographic locations.

The rise of emerging markets and pace of globalisation means that ports are investing large sums to expand facilities to cope with increasing demand for imports and exports. This is at the same time as dealing with issues that have buffeted the wider shipping sector such as rising charter and fuel costs.

Brus Chambers has an impressive track record advising on port and infrastructure projects and transactions in the ports sector spanning a range of legal disciplines including acting on a number of mergers and acquisitions and financing transactions. We advise leading sponsors, banks and governments and port operators and regularly top the league tables for the number and value of deals completed in the ports sector.

Our experience of working in this sector allows us to provide our clients with rich and intelligent advice that demonstrates our understanding of all corporate, finance, construction, operational, permitting, zoning, environmental and regulatory issues which are likely to arise during a variety of transactions involving ports.

Brus Chambers' port and infrastructure team has experience in structuring, development, and financing of concession-based projects, PPPs, and privatizations of infrastructure projects. Our lawyers advise clients on projects in both developed and emerging markets and across a diverse range of industries and sectors.

Brus Chamber's practice attracted glowing praise. The firm is known for both its contentious work as well as advisory work.

ENERGY & MINING

OTHER PROJECTS

[Minor, Mid-sized or Mega size Projects]

Mega-projects including bridges, tunnels, highways, railways, airports, seaports, power plants, dams, wastewater projects, oil and natural gas extraction projects, public buildings, information technology systems, aerospace projects or project of any size of any nature is advised by us.

ENTERTAINMENT & MEDIA

Brus Chambers projects practice includes media and entertainment law, representing some of the most highly acclaimed musicians, actors, directors, producers, television personalities production companies, studios, artists, lyricists, financiers, banks, financial institutions, and the entrepreneurs and companies that work with them.

The firms' corporate commercial team represents several domestic and international media and entertainment companies and individual film and television stars, producers, distributors, associations etc.

The Entertainment Law or Media Law, is a set of relevant laws, rules, policies, and regulations applicable to the industry professionals, agencies, companies, institutions, and organizations. It applies to the entertainment, media of all types including Film Industry, Television, Music, Advertisement, Internet, Publishing, and other industries in connection with these.

The ambit of entertainment Law is quite extensive, and encompasses the fields of Intellectual Property Law; Corporate Law; Project Finance; Labour and Employment Law; Bankruptcy Law; Immigration Law; Taxation Law; Insurance Law; Securities Law; Civil and Criminal Laws; Business and Commercial Law; and Real Estate Law. However, in real practice. Our work includes transactional, litigation and arbitration. Entertainment law governs many facets of the entertainment industry, such as broadcast rights, sports safety issues, sports and recording contracts, as well as certain matters involving copyright and intellectual property law. There are many areas of law which relate to entertainment law, including telecommunications law, sports law, speech law, and virtually all facets of intellectual property law.

The personal service agreement is a primary legal instrument in the entertainment industry. This agreement is negotiated between an artist and a company that manufactures, promotes, and distributes the artist's goods or services. The agreement often binds the artist to produce for one company for a certain period of time. Personal service agreements are often governed by statutes, and are often the subject of litigation because they restrict the rights of artists to perform or create for any entity except the company with whom they have contracted.

PROJECT FINANCE

Brus Chambers is one of the leading Indian law firm for project finance transactions. Our Project Finance practice offers market-leading experience advising on legal matters related to project structuring and development, financing, government regulation, construction and other contract issues across every sector, including Power generation and transmission; Oil and gas; Infrastructure (including roads, airports, bridges, railways and ports); Mining and metals; Water and wastewater treatment.

We represent clients including sponsors, commercial banks and governmental lenders, as well as multilateral and bilateral agencies, on every type of transaction from complex international co-financings to capital markets-based project financings to Islamic financings. Our lawyers have unrivaled insight into local business customs, labor practices, enabling us to provide local depth knowledge and experience.

With extensive experience bringing a wide range of projects to completion, we provide more than just legal counsel; we provide business and strategic advice, and we can structure, negotiate and document the full array of project and financing agreements to suit each client's specific needs. Our team can help identify market, revenue, production, political and other risks, propose methods to mitigate those risks and advise on ways to minimize or reduce liabilities.

Brus Chambers Project Finance practice is one of the best in the country. Our lawyers are industry-focused experience, operating at the forefront of market trends and advising on projects in numerous industry sectors, including airports; education; energy and power; healthcare; mining; oil and gas; petrochemicals; ports; process plants; roads; social infrastructure; technology; transportation (including air and surface transportation); waste and energy from waste.

Brus Chambers is one of the leading Indian law firms for project finance transactions and our practice is considered as one of the best in the country.

who you need to know.

Recently, the firm has been advising on several oil & gas and related projects in India, Middle East and Africa region and has been retained by several overseas and domestic companies. The firm is in the list of IndiaCore Who's who in Power Industry

Legal500 commented that 'The firm is a good choice for oil and gas related projects in both India and the Middle East. The firm also has experience of power projects.'

Legal500 commented that 'Brus Chambers stands out for its (predominantly oil) projects-related work in the Middle East, notably in the UAE, Qatar, and even Iraq. It also has experience of work related to projects in the subcontinent'

Legal500 commented that 'Brus Chambers has a keen focus on projects work within the oil, gas, power and construction sector, inclusive of the project finance, JV agreements and disputes sides to transactions'

Legal500 commented that 'Brus Chambers range of projects work takes in the oil-and-gas, infrastructure and electricity sectors.'

We strive to partner with our clients to develop their most significant infrastructure projects. In addition to having the commitment and loyalty of a dedicated team, clients have full access to Brus Chambers broader capabilities in our corporate, mergers and acquisitions, real estate, government affairs, regulatory, environmental, and international trade practices.

India is in the process of modernising its infrastructure. For speedy development, it is incumbent that a country have adequate power and efficient transport systems. The Indian Government has realised this and has made infrastructure development a high priority sector.

Power: Foreign investors are allowed up to 100% equity in companies involved in power generation, distribution and transmission. In spite of the liberalising the power sector in 1991, generation capacity has not increased. The Government is trying to address this issue and is taking steps to reduce the red tape and bureaucracy in this sector.

Regulatory Matters: Our services include assistance in procuring and completing the tender forms, complying with all the requirements therein and liaising with the Government authorities. We also assist in the review and drafting of Power Purchase Agreements.

Project Finance Documentation: Brus Chambers has a team of experts to assist overseas corporations in structuring their project. We act for many leading financial institutions and regularly draft and review loan agreements, escrow agreements, guarantees, mortgage and hypothecation deeds, and other similar documents.

EPC Contracts: Brus Chambers has experience in drafting turnkey contracts. On account of the application of works contract tax to such contracts, it is advisable to break such contracts into three or four separate agreements, namely, supply agreement, erection agreement and engineering agreement. We have advised clients on these issues and have drafted the necessary agreements.

O&M Contracts: Brus Chambers has experience in drafting O&M contracts.

Roads and Ports: Various State Governments have opened up for development minor ports and motorways on the "Build, Own, Operate and Transfer" basis. We have advised clients on this and other similar schemes.

Concession Agreements: Brus Chambers has assisted clients in negotiating concession agreements. Land acquisition is the biggest hurdle to the successful negotiation of these agreements. Many times, the Government announces tenders for projects without having acquired the land required for the project. Therefore, developers have to be careful in this regard and must conduct their own due diligence, both financial and legal.

Oil and Gas: The New Exploration Licensing Policy ("NELP"), The Indian Government has recently announced the NELP whereby crude oil exploration has been opened up for foreign participation. As a result, activity in this area is on the increase. Brus Chambers has advised clients on this policy and the legal framework in this area.

Exploration Contracts: Brus Chambers has reviewed oil exploration contracts and has advised on Indian contract law relevant to such contracts. We have also assisted in land title searches in this regard.

Aviation: The Indian Government is in the process of divesting its stake in state owned airlines. In addition, foreign investors have been invited to construct airports in various Indian cities on BOOT basis. A clear policy for setting up private airlines with foreign equity ownership is being formulated. Brus Chambers has advised various companies on the Government policy in this area, including Honeywell.

BILLING RATES & CHARGING METHOD

Brus Chambers professional fees are mainly computed on hourly basis, blended hourly rates, some are customised on case to case basis or on fixed fee, retainer etc depending on client requirement or on the matter.

Our fees and expenses are computed in USD, EURO or INR only depending on the requirements of client.

Our firm's billing rates for projects is on hourly basis, while all disbursements are computed on actual. During this period, atleast two solicitors will be working on the given file, also when required more lawyers, para-legal, associates will be working on the file to ensure that quality service is delivered, at no extra cost.

Hourly rates are defined by qualifications, experience of the partner or lawyer working in the file this also depends on complexity, urgency, budget and requirements in the matter.

While computing the hourly rate of each partner or lawyer we have also considered the competitive market, efficiency of each lawyer and the discount that could be made available to make the hourly rate reasonable.

Generally, the firm's time is billed at hourly rates which vary consistent with the experience of the various lawyers and staff who work on the case. The practice is also to employ non-lawyers within the firm (e.g. paralegals) wherever possible to assist the lawyers in the matter. Unless other arrangements are made in advance, the client is invoiced on a regular basis for the time spent by the firm on a client's matter and for costs and expenses incurred on behalf of the client.

Hourly rate are often used where the scope or type of service to be provided is not routine or evolve over time or will be determined by factors outside the control of the client (e.g., projects, an opposing litigant, a corporate acquisition or a similar type of custom engagement).

When entering into an hourly fee arrangement, the client is encouraged to seek estimates for the work. Budgets often form a part of the communication process. While the ongoing detailed reporting sometimes itself increases the level work, with email deliveries, short and informal updates become a more effective tool to solidify and bolster the attorney client relationship.

It is the firm's practice to notify client at the time the firm is engaged as to the number of lawyers including non-lawyers (paralegal) that will work in the file and should there be a requirement to increase the number of lawyers or non-lawyers the lead partner simply informs the client and if there is no such notification from the beginning then it is assumed that only the lead partner along with a paralegal will work in the given file.

All Disbursements incurred are computed on actual. Third party costs would include the following (where applicable): travel and transport; photocopying; phones and faxes; experts and counsels; airfare, hotels and meals, video-conferencing; correspondent fees and expenses; court or institutional fees' stamping and registration; government, quasi-government or other fees; court and other departmental; other actual expenses.

Each client has a dedicated partner (the lead partner) who will lead, co-ordinate and will be directly responsible to meet the client requirements effectively.

Our Billing rates are subject to a minimum fee of USD 350 + Disbursements on actuals.

Timesheet is maintained concerning usage of hours/ man-hour computation, the total usage of time is reflected in our Bill of Cost when forwarded.

We request you to prepare a summary/ briefing note of the proposed project and forward the same to us to enable us to understand and analyse the complexity of the work, as also the number of lawyers or paralegals that maybe required for the given file and accordingly we shall estimate the fees unto a stage and forward the same to you, but before doing so, we request you to forward to us the name of the parties and ask us to run a conflict check thereafter the concerned partner/ lawyer who will attend to your file will revert if we are free to act and represent you along with the fees and expenses.

DEDICATED PARTNER

Each client has a dedicated partner (the lead partner) who will lead, co-ordinate and will be directly responsible to meet the client requirements effectively.

OUR CONTRIBUTION FOR GOOD CAUSE

The firm contributes 0.50 percent from the net profit of the firm towards charity of the Child Relief and 0.50 percent from the net profit of the firm to religious charitable institution Tirupati-Tirumalai Devasthanam-TTD.
